PAINTINGS OF THE PACIFIC NORTH COAST

Beverly Harper _____ PAINTINGS OF THE PACIFIC NORTH COAST

Beverly's paintings are based on observation of her native Pacific north coast. The first and most important influence in her art education was Professor Don Doxey at Westminster College in Salt Lake City, Utah. In those early years it became apparent that art would be a life long passion. She returned to the Pacific Northwest to continue her studies at Humboldt State University and Chico State University, earning a Bachelor of Fine Art Degree before devoting her time to raising a family, only recently reentering the professional art world.

If you are familiar with Beverly's work, you will not be surprised to find a rich variety of themes. Some call her art whimsical, some call it impressionistic, and some call it a split style or parallel passion. The colors are rich blues, yellows, warm oranges, ochres and siennas, with brush strokes that are bold and soft. Most agree her art dances on the sunny side of life.
